Location

Located off the coast of Trang in the south-eastern part of Thailand, Koh Kradan forms part of the Hat Chao Mai National Park. Established in 1981 as one of the Thailand's national park reserves, Hat Chao Mai covers more than 230 square kilometres and offers a variety of tropical environments. People have been drawn to the charms of Hat Chao Mai with it being the least developed region in Thailand, and as such it still maintains much of its natural beauty.

Getting There

The Seven Seas Resort is just a short 30 minutes by speedboat and 1 hour 20 minutes by long tail from Pak Meng Pier at Trang on the mainland. Transfers to the pier can be arranged from Phuket, Krabi and Trang airports and hotels.

As transfers are by boat it is important to remember that in the event of bad weather boat will not be able to operate. Also, there is no pier on Koh Kradan. You will be required to get in and out of the boat from the beach and as such you will get a little wet.
